

New STEM Education Book Offering From Harry Roman

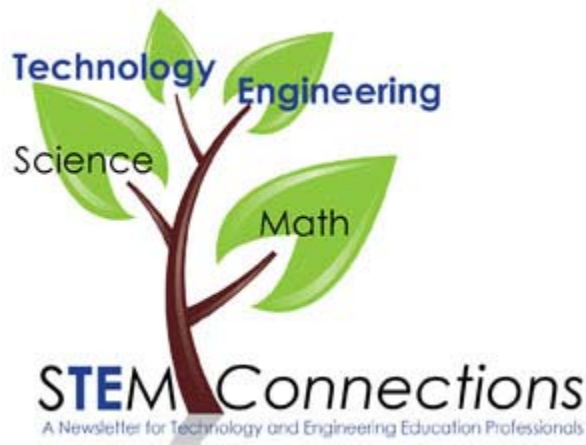

STEM—Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics Education for Gifted Students: Designing a Powerful Approach to Real-World Problem Solving for Gifted Students in Middle and High School Grades

TET contributor Harry Roman discusses planning and implementing STEM education programs for gifted students. This is an essential book for parents and educators that contains many specific suggestions for use by teachers of the gifted in presenting an integrated STEM program. The book covers numerous topics such as the roots of STEM, the study of engineering, importance of math and math activities for the gifted, employee skills, creativity and imagination in the lab, STEM challenge problems, technology education, and applications to the business world.

The book identification number is: ISBN 0-910609-60-8, and the cost is: $20.00. Customers may order via Amazon.com. Contact mfisher345@comcast.net or telephone 703-369-5017 for additional information.

From:

July 27, 2011, Vol. 2, #11

ITEEA Newsletter

INTERNATIONAL TECHNOLOGY AND ENGINEERING EDUCATORS ASSOCIATION